6,554 AIDS Education Coordinators
in School Districts - by Name

A constantly updated selection from the SCHOOL DISTRICTS & OFFICIALS file. School Districts are increasingly recognizing the importance of having trained individuals responsible for educating students on the dangers of AIDS.

Special sessions are now conducted in a growing number of schools throughout the nation in an attempt to stem this deadly epidemic. Films are shown, printed information is passed out, and question-and-answer sessions are led. The main theme is learning that unsafe activity can lead even those thought to be in non-high-risk groups to contract AIDS.

AIDS Education Coordinators are obviously among the major users of any audio-video or published information regarding the disease. They also require the equipment used in classroom presentations and many other special products used in Health Education.
